Retail Market Changes Week Brings Much Difference in

Housewives and others who go out this morning to find the Sunday dinner in the retail market will learn that many of the things they had the privi-lege of buying last week are now out of season. For instance, peaches are off the market, the only pears left are the Ketfers, and, because of their searcity, they are much higher, selling at six for 25 cents, or 5 cents apiece and 7

Prices and Supply.

In the vegetable lines there are also are noted in the quotations below.

The meat market remains practically unchanged, except in the matter of pork products and weak. The quotations will show the changes in these lines. There are no changes in the matter of beef, and little or none in the fish and syster markets. The same may be said of the poultry and game markets.
